Connecticut Magician to Entertain American Troops in Middle East & Africa

Local Vernon-based magician Brian Miller has been invited to spend 10 days entertaining the troops on a handful of Naval Bases in the Middle East and Africa. Precise dates and locations cannot be announced due to safety considerations.

The tour, produced by Navy Entertainment, will take Brian to a handful of bases where he will entertain the Navy Personnel – sailors, soldiers, airmen, and marines – with his magic, comedy, and mind reading.

“I was honored to be invited the first time,” says Miller, referring to his tour of Naval Bases in Europe this past April 2016, for the “Month of the Military Child.”

“The fact that I was invited back, and so quickly, means the world to me. It is truly a privilege to give back to these brave men, women, and families who sacrifice so much for us. It is only because of their sacrifice to protect our freedoms that I have the right to do something as wonderful and silly as magic for a living.”

Brian’s previous tour in April was designed for family audiences, this upcoming tour is specifically for the troops. The shows will be similar in content to Miller’s corporate event and college campus performances.

Since moving to Connecticut in 2010, Brian has performed for countless corporate and private events throughout New England. He spent most of 2011 as the exclusive magician for Foxwoods Resort Casino. Brian has performed at over 100 college campuses in 30 states, which earned him two nominations as “America’s Best Performer” by Campus Activities Magazine.

Not just a magician, Miller is also a corporate keynote and youth motivational speaker. He speaks about how to make meaningful connections with people by learning to take on and understand different perspectives. His TEDx talk “How to Magically Connect with Anyone” has over 2 million views worldwide.
